

FORAKER WIPES OUT THE MCKINLEY MEN.

Relentless Onslaught on Ohio Office Holders Belonging to the Major's Faction.

The Senator-Elect Gets Ready Assistance in His War from Governor Bushnell.

NOT TO STOP UNTIL ALL ARE OUT.

A Bolt at St. Louis May Be the Upshot. Boom of Ex-Governor Pattison, of Pennsylvania, for the Democratic Nomination.

Columbus, O., April 4.—The tug of war between the McKinley and Foraker factions is more in evidence every day. The most sanguine hopes of peace have fallen to the ground. The mistake of Boss Cox, of Cincinnati, who, by a blunder in the convention, nominated Charles K. Kinsley, an ardent McKinley supporter, for Secretary of State, when General A. T. Wilcox, a strong Foraker man, was looked for the nomination and could easily have been nominated, was the primary cause of the renewed outbreak of factional jealousy, for the Foraker people at last recognized that by that one day's work they had materially crippled their machine.

The McKinley faction have the State ticket, the indorsement by the party through the heads of the State institutions, and the leading influences in the State in their favor. The Foraker faction, finding itself in this dilemma, were not without hope, however, for they had Governor Bushnell left to them.

Realizing that in immediate action lay the salvation of their interests, the Foraker people decided upon strenuous measures to redeem their lost fortunes. The means by which they propose to accomplish this purpose is through the instrumentality of Governor Bushnell. Foraker has no rancher friend anywhere than he. The plan that has been adopted is very simple. Under the guise of the reorganization of the State institutions on business principles, Governor Bushnell is to accomplish the work. He has already commenced, and the first man to go was Joseph Smith, State Librarian. Smith, who is well known as one of ex-Governor McKinley's managers, was asked by the Governor to resign, and he packed his grip and left the town.

The next step on the part of the Governor was to recognize the State Penitentiary. This Bushnell proceeded to do by requesting the resignation of the entire board of managers. This board was composed of five members, of which all the applicants were McKinley supporters. Their heads were chopped off and good rank sympathizers appointed in their stead. The new board will be a Foraker one, and as a result a clean sweep of everything McKinley will be made in the institution within the next two weeks.

State institutions will likewise be taken over by a Foraker one. The renovation of everything having to do with McKinleyism about it. This programme will be followed to the end, and when Governor Bushnell has completed the work, so far as his power extends, the McKinleyites in this State will have all retired from public life. The object of all this work is to build up the Foraker machine and destroy as far as possible the influence of McKinley in the State.

It has had its effect, and as a result the McKinley people are thoroughly aroused. The two factions now stand with drawn swords, ready to cleave each other to the heart on the least pretext whatever. The Foraker delegates to the St. Louis Convention, if they dared, would bolt McKinley in favor of Morton or Reed, and if afforded an excuse may do so anyhow.

HIGH PRAISE FOR MCKINLEY.
A Delaware Congressman Declares He is the Idol of the People.

Wilmington, Del., April 4.—Jonathan S. Willis, Delaware's member of the House of Representatives, voiced the sentiment of a majority of Delaware Republicans today when he declared himself in favor of McKinley for President. He expressed his views in the following emphatic manner:

"First—Protection will be the issue in the approaching campaign, and McKinley is regarded by the majority of the people as truly or not as its most logical native." "It is better known than any man who has been mentioned. He is emphatically foremost in his hold upon the masses of the American people." "Third—The opposition to him is neither factional nor personal, and, indeed, is not strictly work is to build up the Foraker machine and destroy as far as possible the influence of McKinley in the State." "Fourth—He has no personal enemies, and without a controversy or a charge behind him with the clearest of escutcheons, with a splendid record as a soldier, commanding respect, gentleness, and firmness with forgiveness—his commanding character commands him to the admiration of the American people. He is my firm belief that no human agency will be able to defeat him at the St. Louis convention."

ATTACKED BY A COPPERHEAD.

Fears Entertained That Miss Mamie Higgin's Wound May Prove Fatal.

Matamoras, N. Y., April 4.—Miss Mamie Higgin, of Fishkill Landing, was badly bitten by a large copperhead snake while standing at the front gate of her home. She was talking with her sister, and suddenly felt something winding itself around her leg and a prickling sensation. She ran screaming to the opposite side of the road, where the snake released its hold and got away before she was killed. A doctor was called and dressed the wound, but blood poisoning has set in, and it is feared the bites may prove fatal.

By action of the Board of Directors of the Short Line the Illinois Central was given a ninety-year lease, with privilege of renewal in consideration of the payment of dividend of 2 1/2 per cent per annum.

DEBATE ON CUBA OVER AT LAST.

The House Gave Two Sessions Yesterday to Discussion and Will Vote on Monday.

Representative Turner Made a Vain Plea for the Administration for Further Delay.

COCKRELL'S THRUST AT SPAIN.

"I Would Take the Old She Wolf by the Throat," He Said, "and Make Her Call Off Weyler and Her Murderers from the Island."

By Julius Chambers
Washington, April 4.—With the exception of one hour given to morning business, the whole of to-day's session of the House was devoted to debate on the conference report on the Cuban resolutions. A night session was also agreed upon, and a vote will be taken early Monday.

Mr. Adams, of Pennsylvania, was the first to open the debate in favor of recognition. He is a member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, and was chairman of the sub-committee having the matter of Cuba in charge. Referring to the statement made by Mr. Boutelle yesterday that the American people were not behind the movement for the recognition of the belligerents, he asserted that not within the memory of the oldest member had so many petitions and memorials been received from the people of this country. He read a set of resolutions, the original of which were in Senator Sherman's possession, adopted by the leading citizens of Mantua, in Pinar del Rio, announcing adherence to the cause of the rebels, to refute the allegation that the patriots had no support in the cities. The Cubans, declared Mr. Adams, would never be conquered.

Mr. Knox, of Massachusetts, was recognized to read a letter from his colleague, Mr. Draper, opposing the passage of the resolutions. Mr. Knox took occasion to say that he differed from Mr. Draper, and made a strong plea for affirmative action. He closed by saying that "if we refuse to give these people aid we shall be false to every tradition of our own country and unfaithful to duty and constituents."

Mr. Cockrell, of Texas, a brother of Senator Cockrell, then made a short argument in favor of agreeing to the conference report. The Texan insisted on something stronger than the pending resolutions. If he had his way, he said, he would seize the old she wolf by the throat and make her take Weyler and her murderers from fair island. In an outburst advanced by some that the Cubans had no navy. Mr. Cockrell declared that the United States had no organized navy during the Revolution.

Walsh, of New York, said that he was in favor of the resolutions and thought that since the recent outbreaks in Spain against the American people there should be no backdown.

"What are we to expect from England," he asked, "if we cringe before so weak a power as Spain?"

Mr. Turner, of Georgia, was the Administration speaker. He is generally believed to represent the views of the President on all things, and particularly this. He asked that the time for debate be extended to half an hour on each side, on Monday.

Mr. Hitt objected, saying that Monday was going to be a busy day, and he thought it best to have the debate closed to-night.

Turner began by stating that he would like to have action postponed for thirty days, until some information could be received concerning the condition of affairs on the island. Mr. Cleveland has agents down on the island looking up statistics, but it is not believed that they are ready to report, hence Mr. Turner's plea for delay. He said that he was not afraid of Spain, or any other country, for that matter, but even Spain could inflict great injury on the United States if war should result from these resolutions.

"If war should be declared," said Mr. Turner, "some people would make money. We have some characters that are fit food for gunpowder, but I do not want to inflict on the people of this country the punishment that should be allotted to only a few. It has been said that the House resolutions could not pass the Senate; they couldn't, the calm, sober second thought has set in."

Lemuel E. Quigg made one of the best speeches of the day. He was frequently interrupted by applause.

At the evening session Mr. Mahon, of Pennsylvania, spoke at some length and in favor of the conference report. He read an extract from Boutelle's Hawaii speech and asked the people to insert the word "Cuba" where "Hawaii" occurred. It showed "that he was wading in blood up to his arm-pits," Mr. Mahon slyly added.

Mr. Atoy, of Virginia, followed Mr. Mahon in a decidedly humorous speech. He recounted his experiences in the Confederate army, and said that there was no danger of war with Spain on account of the resolutions, and what was more, he did not care if there was.

Milburn, of Maine, was also in favor of the resolutions, as were Pickler, Daniels, Broderick and others. St. George Tucker was the only man who spoke against the resolutions during the evening session. At 10 o'clock the House adjourned pursuant to the unanimous agreement reached this afternoon.

THESE WOMEN BELIEVE IN MAKING THEIR HUSBANDS PLAY SECOND FIDDLE

MRS. EMMA ASHTON.
Mrs. Ashton was arraigned in the Jefferson Market Court for shooting at her husband, William. The couple manage two piano stores, one of which is at No. 375 and the other at No. 387 Bleecker street. Her husband said that she had sent circulars to his customers, saying that money paid to her husband was not credited on the books, and that she was the proper one to receive the cash. As a result of this, he said, customers came to him and asked the cause of the trouble. He went with them to his wife, and when she saw him she began shooting.

Ashton began dodging behind pianos, edging always toward the door, and finally got out of the store. Then he ran as fast as he could to Jefferson Market Court, having escaped unhurt. Two court officers returned with him to the store and arrested Mrs. Ashton.

She admitted the shooting and said in excuse that her husband had slandered her. He confessed to having made some remarks far from complimentary, and the case was dismissed.

MRS. ALBERT WEBER'S RUINED ROMANCE.

but when he treated me with almost barbaric cruelty, and I read of his shameful exploits in the newspapers, I decided that it was useless for me to live in the hope that his better nature would ever dominate him and cause him to get away from the associations which were bringing him to moral, physical and financial ruin.

"Remember that my relatives and my intimate friends had read the newspaper accounts of his affair with Nina Farrington and the disgraceful disturbance which they had in the West Twenty-third street establishment, which he had provided her with a sum of $40,000, and I was now I am back where I was eleven years ago, in a professional sense. I feel, though, that I have lost ten of the best years of my life, and my stock of faith and of hope is almost exhausted. It is impossible to stop thinking how different it would have been if I had married some less fascinating and less anxious to evidence his powers of fascination than Mr. Weber. Marry again? No! no! no!"

"Think of it! There I was in a foreign country, without money and with very few jewels on which to secure sufficient to pay my debts and get me back to this country, where I knew that I could obtain employment."

"Mr. Rice, who has known me from childhood, and who, by the way, introduced me to Mr. Weber, engaged me for his company, and now I am back where I was eleven years ago, in a professional sense. I feel, though, that I have lost ten of the best years of my life, and my stock of faith and of hope is almost exhausted. It is impossible to stop thinking how different it would have been if I had married some less fascinating and less anxious to evidence his powers of fascination than Mr. Weber. Marry again? TO CURE CONSUMPTION

Write to T. A. Slocum, M. C., New York City, the Most Eminent Chemist in America.

Two Free Bottles of His Newly Discovered Treatment Will Be Sent You to Be Used Faithfully Upon Its Merits.

In one of the richest and greatest countries on earth over 700 persons die every day of the year from one "monster" disease.

This "monster" seizes them, and slowly crushes out their lives. The country is the United States, and the "monster" is Consumption.

Consumption causes more desolation than war. Of all the diseases which afflict the human race, it is the most fatal.

Its ravages are by no means confined to the lungs alone. It attacks almost every part of the body. It casts a blacker shadow than intemperance.

Out of the 700 lives sacrificed every day from Consumption, over 500 may be saved, and T. A. Slocum, the distinguished chemist, has discovered a way to do it.

It is with a solemn sense of responsibility for his work that he announces through this paper that he has found an absolute cure for consumption.

Thousands of witnesses could be brought forward, whose testimony is incontrovertible to prove not only that Slocum's newly discovered System of Scientific Treatment is wonderfully efficacious in the cure of throat and lung affections, chronic coughs and all conditions of wasting, but that it does cure in cases of well defined and unmistakable consumption.

In order to show his unbounded confidence in the crowning work of his life, he offers to send free two bottles to anybody suffering.

Could anything be fairer or more philanthropic?

Be sure victims of consumption, this offer interests all who work in bad air, all who are exposed to cold and dampness, all who feel the irritation in the throat, chronic cough, sore lungs, and the steady loss of strength and flesh that are the first signs of lung affection.

Our advice is to send your name, post office, express and street address to T. A. Slocum, M. C., 123 Pearl St., New York City, and the two free bottles will be forwarded.

When writing the Doctor, please tell him that you have read this article in THE JOURNAL, and greatly oblige.

Refusers in "Gentler New York" may call at laboratory for free bottles.

MRS. AGNES MANNIX.
Mrs. Mannix is a pretty woman, twenty-three years old, who is said to be fond of whiskey and beating her husband. He has been beaten so often that he wears it out, and when she stabbed him Friday night he had her arrested. The couple live at No. 91 Market slip, and both were in the Essex Market Police Court yesterday. As the husband told how he had been stabbed his wife interrupted.

"You're an angel, aren't you?" she said. "Where are your wings? Don't hide them under your coat. Take it off and let the Judge see your pretty feathers."

Then, turning to the Magistrate, she continued: "I was making an Easter dress, so I could be in the swim, when my husband came home last night. He was as full as a goat and fell on the floor. I picked him up and he struck me. Then I hit him with a broom. Out of revenge he took up my Easter dress. I tried to stop him, and in trying to do so he was accidentally cut by some shears I had in my hand."

This story did not agree with that of the husband or of Patrolman Grimshaw. She was held in $300 bail for trial.

YOU CAN'T DRINK IN RESTAURANTS.

he believes that the prohibition extends to all restaurants, and to all rooms used for restaurant purposes wherein there is a bar, or buffet, or other arrangement or contrivance for the dispensing of liquors in the same room which is thus used for restaurant purposes. He does not think, however, that the restriction should be held to apply to a room used for restaurant purposes in which liquors are not at any time actually kept, although they may, during lawful hours, be sold to and consumed by guests using the room as a restaurant. Such places, however, which do not hold a hotel license, cannot serve wines or liquors even to guests ordering meals, during unlawful hours.

This means that a restaurant which has a bar in a separate room, must close that bar, expose it to full view from the street, lock all the connecting doors and refrain from the service of liquors or wines with meals. Of course, this construction prevents the service of wine with meals in table d'hôte restaurants which have no hotel license, between 12 o'clock Saturday night and 5 o'clock Monday morning.

Such restaurants as O'Neill's will get out hotel licenses as soon as possible.

HOTEL LIBERTIES.

The hotels are exceptionally favored under the Corporation Counsel's interpretation of the law. Referring to this part of the subject, he says that in hotel restaurants guests may be served with wines, beers or liquors on the sole condition that the beverages are not kept for sale in the restaurant itself. As no hotels store liquors in the rooms in which meals are eaten, it is evident that the people of New York need not go thirsty while there are hotels.

The principal sufferers to-day will be restaurants with a single room and a bar in one end, and the table d'hôte places and their patrons.

Joseph Burger, proprietor of a restaurant at No. 20 Avenue C, with a bar in it, has several regular boarders who pay by the week. Rather than lose their trade he gave up his license, which runs to October 1 next, without rebate.

Martha Smith and Pauline Klein, waitresses in Joseph Kinchinsky's restaurant, No. 32 First street, were held in Essex Market Court yesterday, with their employer, in $1,000 bail each for having served drinks outside lawful hours. Kinchinsky was released, but the girls were sent to prison pending trial.

Justice Pryor declined to order the Excise Board to issue a license to Christian Clausen, who has a saloon within 200 feet of the De La Salle Institute, Fifty-ninth street and Sixth avenue.

The Acting Police Inspectors, after 9 o'clock last night, gave the captains in their districts instructions relative to the enforcement of the Raines law.

The Excise law is to be enforced to-day in Brooklyn. All saloons must be closed, and the interiors exposed. Hotels, clubs and restaurants, however, may sell liquor. Licensed groceries must close up at 10 o'clock, and they are forbidden to sell liquor.

Throughout Long Island the new law is being used as the chief factor in the elections which are to be held next week. Party lines have been largely obliterated and the factions are divided on the local option questions.

Otto Kempner Scores Raines Law.
Otto Kempner addressed 500 people in the assembly hall of the Algonquin Club at the clubhouse, No. 227 East Eighty-fourth street, last night, on "The Raines Bill Outrage."

In his remarks he predicted that the restrictions which have been placed on personal liberty by the above measure will shortly result in a complete reaction, which will sound the death knell of Republicanism in this State.

Notice to N. P. Bondholders.
Holders of Northern Pacific Railroad securities are notified by the Reorganization Committee, consisting of Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., of New York; Drexel & Co., of Philadelphia, and the Deutsche Bank, of Berlin, that two-thirds in amount of the bonds, certificates and notes as enumerated in the announcement, having already accepted the plan and agreement of reorganization, further deposits must be made on or before April 22, enclosing certificates of deposit therefor. Deposits after that date, if accepted at all, will be subject to such terms and conditions as may be imposed by the management. For further details, holders of securities are referred to an announcement in another column of this paper.

ALMOST BURIED ALIVE.

Twenty-Five Workmen Have Miraculous Escapes from Death at White Street and Broadway.

Twenty-five workmen engaged in laying the foot-wall in the cellar at the southwest corner of White street and Broadway where a new building is to be erected, had a narrow escape from being buried under tons of brick, earth and building timber yesterday afternoon.

It was shortly after 4 o'clock when the men, who were working on the south side of the cellar, heard a terrific crash. About fifty tons of brick, earth and flag stones tumbled into the excavation, followed by a big pile of building timber, the weight of which had been the cause of the cave-in.

The workmen ran in all directions for safety and all escaped without injury.

"I'm drunk and glad of it!" shouted Magistrate Cornell, "but what have you to say to the charges made by your husband?"

"Your Honor," began Kippier, as he edged away from his wife who stood beside him before the bench. "I can't stand her any longer. She's a holy terror. Whenever she feels like it she makes me dance, and when I don't she pounds me."

"I'm drunk and glad of it!" shouted Mrs. Kippier. "I can whip every man in this room."

"I can see that you are drunk," said Magistrate Cornell, "but what have you to say to the charges made by your husband?"

"I'm sorry I didn't break his head," replied Mrs. Kippier, "and I think I'll do it now."

As she spoke she tried to reach Kippier, who jumped out of the way, while the policeman tried to stop the woman. There was a lively struggle in which she tried to kick Sergeant Lovell in the stomach, and inflicted various bruises on the shins of Roundsman O'Brien.

Magistrate Cornell committed the woman to the Workhouse.

YACHT FOR J. J. ASTOR.

It Will Be the Largest Auxiliary Electric Craft in the World—Its Speed Sixteen Knots.

The largest and most elegantly appointed electric auxiliary yacht in the world is now being constructed at Nyack-on-the-Hudson from designs by Charles J. Mosher for John Jacob Astor. The yacht is already in frame and work has been begun on the planking. Its dimensions are as follows: Length over all, 72 feet; beam, 12 feet; maximum draught, 4 feet. It is fitted with twin screws which will be operated by two electric motors capable of developing at least fifty horse power, which will be supplied by 480 cells. The cells as well as the motor are placed entirely below the floor, so that no cabin space is occupied. It is expected that the yacht will have a maximum speed of sixteen miles an hour.

The deck, planking and exterior finish is of polished mahogany, except the gunwales, which will be of quartered oak. There will also be a low bronze railing, worked around the deck at each end, which, in addition to the other fittings, will be highly polished. The hull, which is of a peculiar form, has a channel way for each propeller, which enables them to work in solid water. There will also be two Tobin bronze centreboards, which may be raised or lowered by two electrical capstans.

The accommodations consist of a forward cockpit, in which is placed the steering wheel, and also controllers for handling propellers, and a saloon eight feet long, fitted with seats and berths, which will be beautifully upholstered with brocade and velvet. The owner's stateroom is aft the saloon, and is upholstered in broad satin and has all modern conveniences. A large galley, lockers and toilet tank the passage-way to the crew's quarters.

The keel, stem, sternpost, frames, plank sheath, deck beams and floor beams are of selected white oak, and the boat will be double-planked, the outside being of polished mahogany and the inside of yellow pine, with a layer of canvas is placed between the inner and outer planking, imbedded in elastic cement. The fastenings throughout will be of Tobin bronze. The deckhouse will be trimmed in mahogany, and the sails, which act as auxiliary power, will be made of the best quality duck.

The name of the yacht will be carved and gilded on a mahogany plate on each side of the bow and also at the stern, while a gilded stripe extends the entire length of the yacht. The rudder and post will be a single casting of manganese bronze. The yacht will be rigged as a two-masted schooner, with hinged masts. Her standing rigging will be of steel wire, and the running rigging of manila. Awnings will also be fitted over the entire deck. The yacht will be finished by the first of June.

Mr. Mosher is also at work on several other high speed boats, two of which are now being constructed at a guaranteed speed of thirty miles an hour. He also began work on the new United States torpedo boats, which require 11,000 horse power.

Mr. Mosher is also the designer and builder of the famous boats Felsen, record, 31.6 miles per hour; Norwood, record, 30.5, and Yankee Doodle, record, 23.6 per hour.

BRADLEY'S BEE BUZZING HARD.

Kentucky's Governor Renews the Siege for the Support of the A. P. A.

Louisville, Ky., April 4.—Governor Bradley addressed another A. P. A. Convention tonight in his fight to secure the indorsement of the Louisville district for President over McKinley. He came down from Frankfort this afternoon, and to-night attended a full meeting of Council No. 15.

A general invitation to other councils extended by the A. P. A. organization was accepted, and the hall was packed. The A. P. A. is strongly organized in Louisville, but it is said that most of the members, who are Republicans, are for McKinley. The McKinley men claim that even with the A. P. A. and negro vote Bradley cannot carry the district.

AMERICAN IN ENGLISH JAIL.

Matthew Adams is Charged with Having Embezzled $40,000 in Colorado.

London, April 4.—Matthew Adams, aged fifty-two, was arraigned in the Bow Street Police Court this morning, charged with having embezzled $40,000 in Denver, and was remanded, pending extradition proceedings.

Adams was arrested in Southampton upon his arrival from America. He had tickets for Cape Town for himself and his wife and servant, and a large sum of money, which was taken from him by the authorities. Adams said in court this morning he wanted his wife to return to Denver, and the Magistrate directed that the Southampton police should provide enough money to enable her to get back to Colorado.

It is understood that Adams has acted as clerk of several courts in Colorado.

Policeman T. F. Kane, of the Leonard Street Station, said he had warned the workmen a month ago not to pile so much building lumber on the old sidewalk, which was supported by only an old and time-worn archway.

The old archway under the sidewalk on White street, as well as those under the street in Franklin alley, present a decayed and unsafe appearance, and the opinion was expressed last night by a business man of the neighborhood that if a heavily loaded truck were to attempt to pass over the Franklin alley archway it would break through and fall into the cellar below.

The electric-wire subway was damaged by the cave-in and an office and tool house had a narrow escape from falling into the cellar.

J. T. Williams, of No. 51 Franklin street, is the contractor in charge of the work.
